The loyalists of Sachin Pilot have alleged that Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot wants to oust the deputy chief minister as the PCC president. Sources in the Sachin Pilot camp have also alleged that the Ashok Gehlot camp is attempting to defame Sachin Pilot.

Speaking to India Today TV, sources said the Rajasthan Police's notice to Sachin Pilot to record his statement in connection with the alleged attempts to topple the Congress government in the state was the flash point between the two leaders which has escalated the rift.

"Rajasthan police SOG memo has escalated rift. The SOG letter to question Sachin Pilot is unacceptable," Sachin Pilot's loyalists have said.

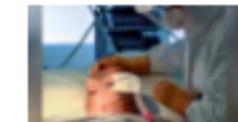

Accusing Ashok Gehlot of attempting to defame Sachin Pilot, the latter's supporters said Ashok Gehlot wants to build a case to oust Sachin Pilot as the PCC President.

This comes as a dozen supporters of Sachin Pilot reached Delhi. According to the reports, Sachin

Coronavirus pandemic: Here is your complete guide to Covid-19

Here is IndiaToday.in's comprehensive guide to the coronavirus pandemic, compiled to arm you with the information you need to protect yourself, your family and your community.

New Delhi

March 20, 2020 UPDATED: June 18, 2020 11:09 IST

A new kind of coronavirus discovered late last year in central China has now spread with ruthless speed to every continent on earth except Antarctica. It has killed tens of thousands, disrupted daily life in ways that would have seemed unthinkable at the start of the new year, and now poses a dire threat to the health of the world economy. The World Health Organisation says the coronavirus pandemic is the "defining global health crisis of our time", capable of revealing the best and worst in humanity. On April 22, the WHO's director-general said the virus "will be with us for a long time", pointing to the early stages of outbreaks in some countries, and an uptick of cases in others.

LinkedIn faces lawsuit for spying on iPhone and iPad users' sensitive data through device apps iOS 14 update has a privacy feature, paste notifications, which notifies users if there is someone copying data from their clipboard from other apps.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Microsoft's LinkedIn has been sued for snooping on iOS users clipboard data.
- As per the complaint, LinkedIn was reading users' clipboards a lot.
- As per the lawsuit, LinkedIn was also spying on their nearby computers and other devices.

Microsoft's LinkedIn is facing a class-action lawsuit for snooping on iOS users' sensitive data and information without their knowledge.

As per a report by Bloomberg, the lawsuit claims that LinkedIn programmed its iPhone and iPad applications to divert sensitive information. The apps use Apple's universal clipboard to read and siphon the data and can draw information from other Apple devices, according to the complaint filed Friday in San Francisco federal court.

As per the suit, the privacy violations LinkedIn caused were exposed by Apple and independent program developers.

These developers found that Apple's most recent mobile operating system, iOS 14 found LinkedIn's application was reading users' clipboard data a lot. The complaint said LinkedIn was snooping on user data constantly. Apple's clipboard often contains sensitive information users cut or copy to paste, including photos, texts, emails, or medical records.

As per the suit, LinkedIn has not only been spying on clipboard data of Apple devices but it has also been spying on their nearby computers and other devices, and it has been circumventing Apple's clipboard timeout, which removes the information after 120 seconds.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of Adam Bauer of New York City, who says he routinely used the LinkedIn App on his iPhone and iPad.

The suit seeks to represent a class of users based on alleged violations of federal and California privacy laws and a breach of contract claim.

Apple recently released a new privacy feature, paste notifications, for iOS 14 developers. This alerts the user when text copied to the Apple clipboard gets accessed by other apps, as per Forbes. Complete access to the update will be made available to users by Fall 2020, Apple had noted.
